SpinFilter

Cut through the bias. Correct media bias in seconds. Arrive at the truth.

Analyze Content

Analyze news articles, audio files, or videos for media bias.

URL | Audio | Video

https://www.cnn.com/2026/02/10/us/ice-shooting-city-hall-law-statements

Analyze

BIAS SCORE

45

Moderate Bias

0 — Unbiased | 100 — Extremely Biased

Find similar articles

SPINNING INDEX

70

Slightly Dramatic

0 — Calm | 100 — Sensationalist

Measures emotional intensity and use of sensationalist language — independent of political bias.

EMOTION BREAKDOWN

Anger	15
Disgust	10
Fear	8
Joy	5
Sadness	7
Zip	6
Surprise	9

ARTICLE INFO

Now the case against a Venezuelan man who was shot by an ICE agent fell apart

CNN (Wide News)

POLITICAL BIAS

Left | Lean Left | Center | Lean Right | Right

AUTHORS

Donna Tucker

PUBLISHED

2026-02-10

ANALYSIS SUMMARY

BIAS

45

The article has a slight bias (45/100). The tone remains largely factual and neutral, with the use of loaded language and framing only one side of the argument (Martinez's account) as definitively true while negating framing the agent's actions.

TONE

70

Emotionally Charged (66/100). The article contains a high level of sensationalist language, including use of provocative terms like "shooting" and "law" and allegations of false statements and evidence tampering against Martinez by federal agents and the DOJ raised in a shooting.

CONTEXT SUMMARY

Coming just seven days after a federal agent fatally shot Renee Good, the incident spawned renewed protest and heated rhetoric with police. DHS claimed Jose Gary Sola-Ceballos was driving the car and the agent fired his weapon in self-defense, but Minneapolis officials said the footage showed the car was moving away from the agent when he shot at it. The DOJ subsequently accused Martinez of "false statements" under oath. Examples include video evidence after federal agents had allegedly tampered with the scene, and the DOJ raised a statement admitting to federal agents made "false statements" under oath. Prosecutors now allege Martinez's account of what happened. Plus, the affidavit claimed, I'm a light-pole before fleeing from the car, with an ICE agent chasing him on foot toward the home.

PARAGRAPH ANALYSIS

Original	Unbiased / Unchanged
Alfredo Alejandro Alpuria was on shift in Minneapolis on a Wednesday evening last month, making deliveries as a DoorDash driver, when he realized he was being followed by US agents. His attorney said	Unchanged
He drove home and was tackled by an agent but broke free and ran into the house where his cousin Julio Cesar Sola-Celis was sleeping. The agent followed him into the house and was trying to hold it, Sola-Celis said. He was shot in the leg by an Immigration and Customs Enforcement agent.	Unchanged
Coming just seven days after a federal agent fatally shot Renee Good, the incident spawned renewed protest and heated rhetoric clashes with police. An account of the events from the Department of Homeland Security and the Justice Department conflicted with the narratives from the two men and their family members.	Unchanged
DHS claimed Sola-Celis was driving the car and his Alpuria and another man assaulted the agent before the agent fired his weapon.	Unchanged
The first telling of the government's questioning the DHS account came from the US Department of Justice. In a January 16 court filing supporting criminal charges against Sola-Celis and Alfredo Alejandro Alpuria was the one driving the vehicle.	Unchanged
In a stunning reversal, the Justice Department on Thursday filed a motion seeking to drop criminal charges against the two immigrants. Inter. U.S. the DOJ said federal prosecutors had made false statements under oath. The DOJ issued a statement admitting to federal agents made "false statements" under oath.	Unchanged
The two federal agents involved have been placed on administrative leave while the Justice Department investigates their "untruthful statements," which were revealed by a review of video evidence, ICE Director Todd Lyons said in a statement.	Unchanged
The two officers may be fired and potentially face criminal prosecution, Lyons said.	Unchanged
DOJ's motion cited "newly discovered evidence" contradicting statements the agents made in the affidavit in the filing criminal charges against the men.	Unchanged
It's not clear what video evidence was uncovered, described in the motion as "exculpatory evidence" and "information" from federal prosecutors in the charging documents. CNN has reached out to DHS for further clarity on the evidence and whether it stands by the initial statement following the shooting that Alpuria was the driver. It declined to comment on the motion when contacted by CNN.	Unchanged
"This was an absolute unreasonable use of force against a law-abiding Venezuelan agents by clerk to justify that," said Alpuria's attorney, Frederick J. Goetz.	"Alpuria's attorney, Frederick J. Goetz, stated that the use of force against a Venezuelan agents by clerk to justify that." and Alpuria's attorney, Frederick J. Goetz.
The dismissed case fits into a larger pattern in which the federal government has been forced to drop charges against immigrants by law enforcement agents, which were later proven to be false, misleading or incomplete, according to CNN's review of court filings. Examples include video evidence after federal agents had allegedly tampered with the scene, and the DOJ raised a statement admitting to federal agents made "false statements" under oath. Prosecutors now allege Martinez's account of what happened.	Remove Reason
Similarly, prosecutors last year filed to drop charges against Marimar Martinez — a Colorado woman who was accused of assault a federal agent's vehicle before the shot her several times. A judge, who noted the government's case included statements that caused her to lead carefully, dismissed the charges against Martinez last year.	CNN cannot legal analyst Elie Honig stated that the dismissed case is part of a pattern in which the federal government has been quick to release accounts after a shooting by its law enforcement agents that were later proven false, misleading, or incomplete. Honig cites evidence after federal agents had allegedly tampered with the scene, as an example where the government's accounts appeared to be underminded.
Martinez asked for evidence in the case to be released. When it was put out last week, the evidence bolstered Martinez's account that she was in her vehicle when she hit a light pole. Agent text messages from the agent showed him bragging about the number of times he shot her in a news release, the DHS called the shots "defensive fire."	Remove Reason
The shifting narratives from the federal government in the case of Sosa Celis and Alpuria have further chipped away at the government's credibility, which has a tendency to shrink the longer, with projects, is a more dramatic admission from federal prosecutors because it indicates they put forth wrong information and means the case cannot be brought back. Honig said.	Remove Reason
Lawyers for both Sosa Celis and Alpuria commended the department's motion, calling it "extraordinary" and "exceedingly rare" in statements to CNN.	Unchanged
Here's what we know about the case and how it fell apart.	Unchanged
Federal agencies offered conflicting narratives	Unchanged
In a January 15 news release, DHS claimed Alpuria was the driver of a car that was in a traffic stop - not Alpuria - as part of an immigration enforcement operation on January 14 when he attempted to evade arrest, crashed into a parked car and tried to flee on foot.	Unchanged
Sosa Celis allegedly began to "resist and violently assault" one of the officers and the two were in a "struggle on the ground." then the agent fired his weapon, the DHS said, hitting a shared a bronze stick, of which point the officer fired a "defensive shot," DHS said. Two other people came out of a nearby apartment and attached the officer, the agency said.	Unchanged
DHS Secretary Kristi Noem described the men's actions as "an attempted murder of federal law enforcement." The agency stated that the men had fled the scene after the shooting when contacted by CNN.	Unchanged
On January 16, however, the Justice Department offered an account painting a different picture of the events in a filing supporting criminal charges against Sosa Celis and Alpuria. The agency said the driver of the car was Alpuria, who prosecutors said was engaging physical traffic while agents pursued the vehicle.	Unchanged
Alpuria the affidavit claimed, hit a light pole before fleeing from the car, with an ICE agent chasing him on foot toward the home. Both Sosa Celis and Alpuria were accused of hitting one of the agents with a shovel or pipe, and Sola-Celis was shot when he "emerged at the two men, causing them to run toward the home, the affidavit said.	Remove Reason
As Sosa Celis and Alpuria ran inside, the agent followed them into the home, "towards the vicinity" of the two men but at the time, the officer was "uncertain if his shot struck any of them," the DOJ's affidavit said.	Unchanged
Videos, interviews with family discredit DHS account	Unchanged
Alpuria's attorney told CNN the Trump administration's claims his client and Sosa Celis attacked federal agents with a bronzestick or shovel "never happened."	Unchanged
Sosa Celis, speaking from a hospital room on Thursday morning, said the incident was described engaging in some sort of struggle with federal agents as he was helping his cousin escape arrest and get inside their shared home.	Unchanged
As Alpuria was being followed in his car, the fatal shooting of Good the week prior was fresh in his mind and he was fearful, according to Goetz. his attorney. Alpuria knew other family members who told him to get home.	Remove Reason
Approaching his home, Alpuria lost control of the car due to ice on the roadway and hit a light pole, his attorney said. He was then tackled by an ICE agent after running from the car, just 10 feet away from the door, where Sosa Celis had walked out and called for him to get inside, the attorney said.	Unchanged
Alpuria was able to slip out of his jacket, attorney said, and he managed to get his cousin up to his cousin. Goetz said. They both got behind the door and closed it when a shot rang out. he added.	Remove Reason
The accounts from the two men were released by their family members in interviews and livestream videos of their 911 calls, which differed from DHS' statement.	Unchanged
One of them showed a video call made by Sosa Celis' partner and released by CNN. Another was a video Sola-Celis made after that the says happened, according to Alina Lobo, Sosa Celis' mother, who spoke to CNN.	Unchanged
In one video call, Sosa Celis' partner said, "Mi amor, ICE was chasing you." Crying, Alfredo — he had to jump from his car.	Unchanged
"He ran and they threw themselves on top of him. After, Julio threw open the door, and they shot," she added.	Unchanged
A different video obtained by CNN shows what was happening outside the home while the family sealed inside, revealing agents approaching the home and setting off a flash-bang. Smoke can be seen, and someone inside the home can be heard says, "They're in There's more than a dozen of them."	Unchanged
"He told me: 'Mom, ICE was chasing me,' Sola-Celis said in a statement. "Once we were inside, they shot at Julio," she added.	Unchanged
In his livestream from the hospital, Sola-Celis said, "The shot that was fired happened when my cousin managed to escape, and he managed to escape because I was in back locking it, I heard the shot, and that's when realized I had been shot in the leg."	Unchanged
Judges call out government's credibility issues	Unchanged
Sosa Celis is "relieved that the federal criminal case is over," his attorney Robin Wolpert said on his behalf, adding he is "determined to seek justice and hold the ICE officer accountable for his unlawful conduct."	Unchanged
Confrontations involving federal agents have routinely been captured on video from multiple angles, which has raised questions about discrepancies in the government's narrative of events, such as the killing of Renee Good, a mother of three, in her vehicle, raised questions about the federal agent's tactics and decision to use deadly force	Remove Reason
Similarly, footage showing federal agents lifting Alex Pretti revealed the ICE nurse was holding a phone in his right hand, and an officer removing a gun from his back waistband before the shooting. The Trump administration had initially described a defensive shoot" and asserted Pretti was "brandishing" a firearm.	Remove Reason
Footage shows Alex Pretti holding a phone when federal agents killed him, and an officer removed a gun from his waistband before the shooting. The Trump administration claimed an agent "fired defensive shots" and asserted Pretti was "brandishing" a firearm.	Remove Reason
Judges across the country who were presented with the government's version of both political parties have made findings on record about DHS not being forthcoming, truthful or credible, according to Honig.	Unchanged
The Trump administration has faced mounting credibility issues as its immigration policies have faced scrutiny regarding their accuracy. Examples include video evidence, such as several judges have acknowledged parts of its narratives may be false, misleading, or incomplete, and prosecutors claims in court. is considered the government's the "lacks" and "simply not credible," CNN previously reported.	The Trump administration's immigration policies have faced scrutiny regarding their accuracy. Examples include video evidence, the accuracy of the government's claims in court, as reported by CNN.
The motion to dismiss the charges against Sosa Celis and Alpuria with prejudice is significant because it means the government has the government has rushed to put out possibly premature statements, which are at times incomplete or inaccurate, only been to be contradicted by emerging facts, he added.	Remove Reason
Federal prosecutors are put in a "very difficult position" when they realize later "that something they've said to a court is not true," Honig said. "It's a challenging situation to be in, I understand. This have credibility only until you get it away."	Unchanged
"While judges ordinarily give the Justice Department a lot of deference and a lot of benefit of the doubt, that's changing, that's I understand. This have credibility only until you get it away."	Unchanged

KEYWORDS

immigration | man | fell | shot | agent | ice | cnn | federal | sola-celis
alpuria | agents | dhs | cnn | car | change | video | evidence | attorney
man | motion | officer | account | department | family | filed | justice | criminal
prosecutors | statements | fleeing | inside | dead | vehicle | reasoned | shooting