SpinFilter

Cut through the spin. Detect media bias in minutes. Arrive at the truth.

Analyze Content

Analyze news articles, audio files or videos for media bias

URL | Audio | Video

https://www.cnn.com/2026/02/10/us/ice-shooting-dhs-city-false-statements

Analyze

BIAS SCORE

65

High Bias

0 — Unbiased

100 — Extremely Biased

Find similar articles

SENSAT INDEX

70

Highly Sensatio

0 — Calm

100 — Sensationalist

Measures emotional intensity and use of manipulative language — independent of political bias.

EMOTIONAL DIMENSIONS

Anger	15
Disgust	10
Fear	18
Neutral	35
Sadness	1
Joy	1
Surprise	3

ARTICLE INFO

Ring-flow over against a Venezuelan man who was shot by an ICE agent fell apart

AUTHORS
Emma Tucker

PUBLISHED
2026-02-15

ANALYSIS SUMMARY

BIAS

65

This article shows a Moderate Bias (65/100) due to presenting opinions as facts without qualification, using sensationalized language to describe a politically loaded event, and implying a claim impartially was questionable.

SENSAT

70

Sensationally Charged (70/100). The drama score is driven by elements such as heated protests, contested narratives, and high-stakes claims, and underscoring of government accounts through video evidence.

CONCLUSION SUMMARY

Coming just seven days after a federal agent fatally shot Renee Good, the incident spawned renewed protests and heated clashes with police. DHS claimed Grow Cafe was driving the car and the agent, and another man assaulted the agent before the agent fired his weapon. In it, the DOJ said federal prosecutors provided incorrect information to the court, while DHS officials continued to characterize the fatal federal agents made "false statements" under oath. Examples include video evidence after federal agents had claimed Good was a "domestic terrorist" and "violently ram[ming] her vehicle into a federal officer," which appeared to underscore elements of the government's accounts of what happened. Disputes, including the Justice Department investigation into "unlawful statements," which were revealed by a review of video evidence. ICE Director Todd Lyons said in a statement admitting its federal agents made "false statements" under oath.

PARAGRAPH ANALYSIS

Original	Unbiased / Unchanged
Alfredo Alejandro Alpirne was on shift in Minneapolis on a Wednesday evening last month, making deliveries as a DoorDash driver, when he noticed a car being followed by ICE agents, his attorney said.	Unchanged
He drove home and was tackled by an agent but broke free and ran into the house where his family was celebrating his birthday, his attorney said. But he shut the front door and was trying to lock it. Since Cafe said he was shot in the leg by an Immigration and Customs Enforcement agent.	Unchanged
Coming just seven days after a federal agent fatally shot Renee Good, the incident spawned renewed protests and heated clashes with police. An account of the events from the Department of Homeland Security soon after the incident conflicted with the accounts of the two men and their family members.	Unchanged
DHS claimed Grow Cafe was driving the car and he, Alpirne and another man assaulted the agent before the agent fired his weapon.	Unchanged
The first inkling of the government questioning the DHS account came from the US Department of Justice. In a January 16 court filing supporting criminal charges against the two men, the DOJ asserted Alpirne was the one driving the vehicle.	Unchanged
In a stunning reversal, the Justice Department on Thursday filed a motion seeking to drop criminal charges against the two Venezuelan men. In it, the DOJ said federal prosecutors provided incorrect information to the court, while ICE issued a statement admitting its federal agents made "false statements" under oath.	Unchanged
The two federal agents involved have been placed on administrative leave while Justice Department investigates their "unlawful statements," which were revealed by a review of video evidence. ICE Director Todd Lyons said in a statement.	Unchanged
The two officers may be fired and potentially face criminal prosecution, Lyons said.	Unchanged
DOJ's motion cited "newly discovered evidence" contradicting statements the agency included as the basis for filing criminal charges against the men.	Unchanged
It's not clear what video evidence was uncovered, described in the motion as "materially inconsistent with the allegations" from federal prosecutors in the charging document. CNN has reached out to DHS for comment. The department has defended its stands by the initial statement following the shooting but did not have back. The DOJ declined to comment on the motion when contacted by CNN.	Unchanged
"This was an absolute unreasonable use of force against a man who was driving an agent who was trying to justify that," said Alpirne's attorney, Frederick J. Goetz.	Unchanged
The dismissal case fits into a larger pattern in which the federal government has been forced to backtrack on claims made about its law enforcement agents, which were been proven to be false, misleading or incomplete, according to CNN senior legal analyst Elie Honig. Examples include video evidence after federal agents had claimed Good and Alex Pretti, which appeared to underscore elements of the government's accounts of what happened.	Unchanged
Similarly, prosecutors last year filed to drop charges against Marlene Martinez in Chicago, after the government said seemed a federal agent's vehicle before he shot two several times. A judge, who noted the government's "serious allegations" that caused her to dread carefully, dismissed the charges against Martinez last year.	Unchanged
Martinez asked for evidence in the case to be released. When it was put out last week, the evidence bolstered Martinez's account that she was not a threat to the agents, with the agent's text messages from the agent showed him bragging about the number of times he shot her. In news release, the DHS called the shots "defensive fire."	Unchanged
The shifting narratives from the federal government in the case of Grow Cafe and Alpirne have further chipped away at the Trump administration's credibility, as the mission to dismiss the charges with prejudice underscores how the government's prosecutors knowing it indicates they put forth wrong information and means the case cannot be brought back, Honig said.	Unchanged
Lawyers for both Grow Cafe and Alpirne commended the department's motion, calling it "extraordinary" and "exceedingly rare" in statements to CNN.	Unchanged
Here's what we know about the case and how it fell apart:	Unchanged
Federal agencies offered conflicting narratives	Unchanged
In a January 15 news release, DHS claimed federal agents were targeting Grow Cafe in a traffic stop - not Alpirne - as part of an immigration enforcement operation on January 14 when he attempted to evade arrest, crashed into a parked car and tried to flee on foot.	Unchanged
Grow Cafe allegedly began to "resist and violently assault" one of the officers and the agent fired his weapon, the DHS said. Alpirne "got loose and began striking the officer with a shovel or broom stick," of which point the officer fired a "defensive shot," DHS said. Two other people came out of a nearby residence and attacked the officer the agency said.	Unchanged
DHS Secretary Kristi Noem described the men's actions as "an attempted murder of a law enforcement officer." Noem repeated by its initial statement a few days after the shooting when contacted by CNN.	Unchanged
On January 18, however, the Justice Department offered an account painting a different picture of the events in a filing supporting criminal charges against Grow Cafe and Alpirne. That document said the driver of the car was Alpirne, who prosecutors said was zigzagging through traffic while agents pursued the vehicle.	Unchanged
Alpirne, the affidavit claimed, hit a light pole before fleeing from the car, with an ICE agent chasing him on foot toward the home. Both Grow Cafe and Alpirne were accused of attempt to flee and assault, with the second broom before the agent pointed his weapon at the two men, causing them to run toward the home, the affidavit said.	Unchanged
As Grow Cafe and Alpirne ran inside, the agent fired one round from his pistol. Alpirne said he was shot in the leg and at the time, the officer was "uncertain if his shot struck any of them," the DOJ's affidavit said.	Unchanged
Videos, interviews with family discredit DHS account	Unchanged
Alpirne's attorney told CNN the Trump administration's claims his client and Grow Cafe attacked federal agents with a broomstick or shovel "never happened."	Unchanged
Grow Cafe, speaking from a hospital room on a livestream video on his Facebook account, said he was shot in the leg while he was talking with federal agents as he was helping his cousin escape arrest and get inside their shared home.	Unchanged
As Alpirne was being followed in his car, the Spain-speaking of Guatemala said, prior was fleeb in his mind and he was fearful, according to Goetz. He attempting Alpirne called his family members, who told him to get home.	Unchanged
Approaching his home, Alpirne lost control of the car due to ice on the roadway and hit a sneakerb, Goetz said. Alpirne was then tackled by an ICE agent after running from the car, just 10 feet away from the door. Alpirne said he was then tackled and he tries to get inside, the attorney said.	Unchanged
Alpirne was able to slip out of his jacket, freeing himself from the agent's grasp, and ran to his cousin, Goetz said. They both got behind the door and closed it when a shot rang out, he added.	Unchanged
The accounts from the two men were reiterated by their family members in interviews and livestream videos of their 911 calls, which differed from DHS' statement.	Unchanged
One of them showed a video call made by Grow Cafe's partner and reviewed by CNN, frantically describing to family members what she says happened, according to Alice Cela, Grow Cafe's mother, who spoke to CNN.	Unchanged
In one video call, Grow Cafe's partner said, "Alfredo was in his car and the officers followed him. He had to jump from his car."	Unchanged
"He ran and they threw themselves on top of him. After, lulu threw open the door, and they shot," she added.	Unchanged
A different video obtained by CNN shows what was happening outside the home while the family waited inside, revealing agents approaching the home and setting off a flash bang. Similar can be seen, and Alpirne's mother is heard on a phone says, "They're in! There's more than a dozen of them."	Unchanged
"He told me, 'Mom, ICE was chasing me," Alpirne's mother Mabel Alpirne later said. "Once we were inside, they shot at lulu," she added.	Unchanged
In his livestream from the hospital, Grow Cafe said, "The shot that was fired happened when my cousin managed to escape, and he [Alpirne] managed to escape, and he was looking, I, heard the shot, and that's when I realized I had been shot in the leg."	Unchanged
Judges call out government's credibility issues	Unchanged
Grow Cafe is "relieved that the federal criminal case is over," his attorney Kristin Bulkley said in a statement to CNN, but "determined to seek justice and hold the ICE officer accountable for his unlawful conduct."	Unchanged
Confrontations involving federal agents have multiply years, which has underscored mounting questions about the credibility of the government's narrative of events. Videos from the killing of Renee Good, a mother of three, in her vehicle, raised questions about the federal agent's tactics, and decision to use deadly force.	Videos of confrontations involving federal agents have multiply years, which has underscored mounting questions about the credibility of the government's narrative of events, such as the killing of Renee Good, a mother of three, whose questions were raised about the agent's tactics and decision to use deadly force. Read Report
Similarly, footage showing federal agents dragging Alex Pretti out of his vehicle and holding a phone to his right hand, and an official removing a gun from his back waistband, contradicted the Trump administration claims that an agent "fired defensively" when Pretti was approaching a federal vehicle. Read Report
Footage showing Alpirne's mother Mabel Alpirne being "handcuffed" by officers	Footage showed Alex Pretti's mother Mabel Alpirne being removing a gun from his waistband before the shooting, the Trump administration claimed an agent fired defensive shots and that Pretti was brandishing a firearm. Read Report
"It's mind-boggling that DHS continues this pattern of making immediate, definitive statements that are contradicted by video or very quickly disproved by actual evidence," said senior CNN legal analyst Honig.	A senior legal analyst, Honig, stated that the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) continues to make immediate, definitive statements about events that are quickly disproved by evidence. Read Report
Judges across the country who were appointed to the bench by presidents of both political parties have made findings on record about DHS not being forthcoming, truthful or candid, according to Honig.	Unchanged
The Trump administration has faced mounting credibility issues as its immigration crackdown has rolled out in blue cities. Officials have been caught making or acknowledging parts of its narratives may be true, others have described the government's claims in court as "unreliable," "unmoored to the facts" and "simply not credible," CNN previously reported.	The Trump administration's immigration policies have faced scrutiny and varying legal interpretations, with some judges questioning the credibility of the government's claims in court. Read Report
The motion to dismiss the charges against Grow Cafe and Alpirne with prejudice is "remarkably unusual," said Honig. It speaks to the Justice Department's belief that it had not possibly provided true statements, which are at times incomplete or inaccurate, only later to be contradicted by emerging facts, he added.	Unchanged
Federal prosecutors are put in a "very difficult position" when they realize they said something they've said to a court is not true, Honig said but they nevertheless have a duty to correct the record.	Unchanged
"While judges ordinarily give the Justice Department a lot of deference and a lot of credibility, that credibility has been, and continued, "You have credibility only until you give it away."	Unchanged

KEYWORDS

immigration · man · fell · shot · agent · ice · case · federal · scrap · cafe · alpirne · agents · dhs · cnn · ca · charges · video · evidence · attorney · man · motion · officer · account · department · family · fired · justice · criminal · prosecutors · statements · living · inside · door · vehicle · statement · shooting